Advice on Use of Soft Corn Is Given by Nichols

Special Handling is Urged for Crop Hit by Frost

(By Ray T. Nichols, Lake Co. Farm Advisor)

Lake county farmers confronted with the problem of handling and storing soft corn cannot follow the same procedures used in husking and cribbing sound corn. To save feeding value and prevent molding, various special methods must be used. The method selected will depend on the degree of maturity of the crop, the need for feed on the farm, and the equipment available for handling and storage.

Under normal conditions mature ear corn is husked and cribbed in the fall at moisture contents of 18 to 25 percent. In corn that is killed by frost before it is mature, the moisture in the ears may range from 26 to 65 percent of the total weight of the ears. It is then regarded as soft corn.

Four practical methods for handling soft corn are: (1) make it into silage, (2) leave it on the standing stalk in the field, (3) cut and shock it, and (4) husk and crib it, giving special attention to methods of ventilation and handling to prevent loss.

Make Soft Corn Into Silage
Under conditions where the feed can be utilized, the best plan for storing soft corn is to put it into the silo. This method is the only effective way to save the crop if it is very immature and the moisture content is high. Silage is generally made from the whole plant, but if silo space is limited, the most important part of the crop can be saved by using only the snapping or husked ears. In any case it should be cut as soon as possible after frost. Green corn may be allowed to lie in the field for one to four days before being put into the silo.

If cutting is unavoidably delayed for some time after the corn has frozen, wilting will not be necessary. When the corn is badly dried out after freezing, enough water should be added to the cut silage to make it pack well in the silo.

If only the ears are put into the silo, they may be either husked or snapped and run through the silage cutter. It is desirable to have about 70 percent moisture in the silage; therefore water should be added, if necessary, to get a moist mass that will pack well.

Temporary Silos
There is little opportunity to erect permanent silos late in the season, and the best solution is to build temporary silos for emergency storage. The most practical above ground temporary silo is the fence and paper type. Trench silos are low in cost, requiring only the labor of excavation. They may be made as large as needed to hold the crop. The trench silo must be located on a well-drained site, preferably on sloping ground. A free mimeographed leaflet AE400, "Temporary or emergency silos," may be obtained on request to the farm advisor. Another useful circular, free on request, is AE173, "Filling Illinois Silos."

Leave Corn in Field
Soft corn will dry out better on the standing stalk than in a crib. During the fall and early winter it may even dry out enough to permit it to be husked and cribbed. Farmers who intend to feed their grain may avoid the storage problem entirely by letting the corn stand in the field until it is needed for feed. Frosted immature corn frequently stalk breaks, however, if left in the field too long, with the result that the ears become ground-damaged.

Victory Campaign Presents Challenge

The cooperation of Antioch township residents in making the Victory Loan drive which will open Oct. 29 as much of a success here as were the previous ones is being asked by Campaign Chairman Otto S. Klass.

In his plea, Klass comments as follows:

"Secretary of the Treasury Fred M. Vinson has announced that the Victory Loan to begin Oct. 29 and close Dec. 8 will be the last of the war loans, and that the goal, corporate and individual, is 11 billion dollars. The quota for individuals is four billion, two billion for E bonds alone."

"In this drive the bonds will be called Victory bonds, instead of War bonds, and there will be a new denomination, the $200 Roosevelt bond."

"The slogan adopted by the Finance committee for the drive is, 'They finished their job—let's finish ours.'"

"A design combining the Victory wreath and Liberty torch has been developed for use in advertising the campaign."

"Ted R. Gamble, national director of the War Finance division of the Treasury, in presenting a history of the entire war financing program since its inception in 1941 to the National Magazine Editors' Council said, in part—"

"We have had to sell 900 million individual bonds to 85 million people, an average of 10 bonds for every person. The record of the American people is noteworthy."

"There has been a great deal of talk about redemptions. We still have $81.30 out of $100 of E bonds taken in and $85.22 of every $100 of series E, F and G—an excellent record, after studying the habits of investors."

"Many billions will be needed in the month ahead. The Victory loan must be a springboard for discharging our continued responsibility to the 85 million bond buyers, and these securities have advantages that must be made available following the Victory loan."

"Some indications of the tremendous costs still facing the nation—costs which the billions raised in the Victory loan will help defray—may be gathered from the list of fixed expenses which America will continue to carry. These include: mustering out pay for the millions of service men and women soon to be released from our armed forces; salaries and maintenance costs for those other millions of personnel who will make up the armies which will occupy Germany and Japan; costs of terminating thousands of army, navy and maritime commission contracts; and the every-mounting costs of reconditioning and rehabilitating the wounded."

"We believe that we can go to the people in Antioch township, tell them why the money is needed, why they should buy for their own interest, and say to them, 'For the last time, America buy extra bonds, and we believe they'll do it.'"

New Fords to be Featured at Local Garage Tomorrow

Friday is V-8 Day, according to the Antioch garage, local Ford sales representative.

An automotive public that has not seen a new car since the war will get the first opportunity to view the 1946 Fords on that day, say William A. Rosing and Herman Rosing, proprietors.

Every Ford Motor Company dealer will have at least one of the new, improved models on display.

J. R. Davis, director of sales and advertising, said that the company long had planned to be first in public display of automobiles.

He said it had been hoped that prices of the new cars could be announced at the time of the public showing, but now it doesn't appear as though a price would be received from OPA by that time. Consequently, dealer deliveries to the public apparently will be delayed.

"Ford production is rolling now and if we can go ahead unhampered, we should have hundred of Fords in every sales area within a few weeks," Mr. Davis said. "We will continue to seek a price arrangement so persons who want to buy Fords may do so as soon as possible."

Faulkner Explains Soy Price Support Program Saturday at Elkhorn

There is a price support program for soybeans for the year of 1945, Chester A. Faulkner of the Lake County AAA committee reminds growers.

According to Faulkner, the program is similar to that for 1944. "The base support price to all farmers will be $2.04 per bushel for green and yellow beans grading U. S. No. 2, with moisture content of 14 percent, delivered by farmers to a county elevator, processing plant or other normal delivery points. Support will remain in effect to June 30, 1946," he states. "Premiums will be provided for lower moisture content and discounts for lower grades."

He also points out that non-recourse loans at the support prices will be made available to farmers for soybeans grown in 1945 and stored on farms. Loans will be available until Jan. 31, 1946, and will mature on April 30, 1946, or earlier, on demand.

Wars Threaten Man's

Dominance Over World

If future wars kill men in increasing numbers, insects may dominate man despite DDT or even more powerful insecticides, according to Dr. Orlando Park, professor of zoology at Northwestern university.

In an article in the current issue of Science, Dr. Park stated:

"When or if enough people are killed, a point will be reached where insect control weakens, and man is no longer strongest. Then man will begin to fall as a world power, to enter the dusk of biological distinction, from which no previous species has been known to make a complete recovery.

"There is still time to preserve the species sapiens, but not much time to ensure its dominance in the long future."

Mass flights of airplanes spouting insecticides are no answer to the treat, he said, because insects and their small relatives are essential to man's existence. They are vital to the formation of fertile soil from which food-producing plants gain nutriment, and as pollinating agents are responsible for many fruits and vegetables, he said.

"The political scientist and the sociologist have concerned themselves with strife between human groups, but the biologist is convinced that a greater danger is involved," he said. "All that we do toward our own destruction weakens our struggle with insects.

"Man has increased the life span, warded off infection with sulfa and penicillin, and rendered living less arduous by labor-saving machines. But at the same time he is learning to kill or hurt more people in less time than ever before.

"Such a state of affairs is ridiculous in the long range aspect of biology. There is no ground for supposition that it can continue."

He predicted that if wars persist, keeping abreast of scientific advancement, the decline of man will be much swifter than that of the dinosaurs. Man may already have committed himself to "species suicide," but he "possibly" may retain dominance by world co-operation, Park said.

He stated that although man has a good chance of survival, dominance may pass to another species or group of species if he does not conserve his physical and biological resources.

He said that insect control must be selective, with eradication only of insects dangerous to agriculture and public health. This will require "exact research rather than shotgun methods," a more accurate knowledge of insect species, and a more enlightened insecticide-chemistry, he said.

"World dominance by the dinosaurs was established gradually over millions of years, was unconscious, and required little more than physical strength," he said. "By comparison man's rise has been meteoric, it has been largely conscious, and it has brought to bear a steadily increasing array of psychological, sociological, and material weapons to complete the mastery of the earth."

These weapons, he said, may accelerate man's fall more effectively than they did his rise.

Mrs. Walter Harrison, nee Charlotte Darby, a former Wilmot resident and a daughter of the late Dr. Henry C. and Annie Belle Hook Darby, died early Thursday morning at the Woodstock, Ill., hospital as a result of burns received in a home accident on Monday. The former Wilmot resident sustained the fatal injuries in the basement of her home at Ringwood, Ill., Monday morning when a kerosene explosion threw a panful of flaming liquid over her body. She had gone to the basement to do the family washing and, while heating the water for the washing on a wood-burning stove, sought to hasten the fire by pouring kerosene on the fire. She had thought the first application of kerosene had not ignited but when the second amount was added it caused and explosion which ignited her clothing. Her husband and son Earl were in the upper rooms and heard her call for help and rushed to her assistance. They smothered the flames and she was rushed to the Woodstock hospital. Examination there disclosed that she had received severe burns over the greater part of her body but she seemed to respond to medical treatment. Wednesday she took a turn for the worse and succumbed to her injuries early Thursday morning.

Why people enjoy living in Chicago and Northern Illinois

Whether you live in a city apartment easily accessible to your business... a home with a yard for the children in any of the attractive suburban communities... a country place... or a home in one of Northern Illinois' progressive smaller cities or towns, the finest recreational and cultural advantages in the nation are available to you.

For Chicago and Northern Illinois is truly a leading educational center of the world. Northwestern University, the University of Chicago—these are only the two largest of scores of outstanding institutions providing almost unlimited facilities for learning. Open to everyone are the thousands of fine churches, great libraries, the Chicago Art Institute, the Museum of Natural History, and the Museum of Science and Industry. The Shedd Aquarium, Adler Planetarium and Brookfield Zoological Park... the opera, the theatre, symphony music are here for your enjoyment.

And stretching westward from the Lake Michigan shore with its sandy beaches and excellent yacht harbors, 41,000 acres of parks and forest preserves await your holiday with horseback riding, picnicking, fishing, swimming, sailing and golf—more than 200 courses within 40 miles of the city. The beautiful valleys of the Fox and Rock Rivers, the inviting waters of numerous inland lakes—all are within easy reach by fine auto highways.

Two major league baseball clubs, college and professional football, the colorful Golden Gloves boxing tournament, the famous Mackinac Yacht races, the International Livestock Show—these are some of the many important competitions centering here. There are winter sports—skating, skiing, tobogganing, hockey, ice boating, duck shooting. Then, too, this area is within a day's drive or a few hours by plane of the Wisconsin, Michigan and Canadian fishing and resort country.

The great diversification of opportunity in Chicago and Northern Illinois allows people to follow the kind of work they like... to live where and as they like... to play and relax as they like. This is why people enjoy living in Chicago and Northern Illinois.

Industries locating in this area have these outstanding advantages

Railroad Center of the United States • World Airport • Inland Waterways • Geographical Center of U. S. Postwar Agriculture

THE RIGHT TRACTOR
FOR THE PARTICULAR JOB

THE proverbial Jack-of-all-trades was master of none. The modern world of science and technology passed him by.

The same principle applies to farm tractors. The tractor that does a wide variety of jobs unsatisfactorily can't possibly produce the greatest results at the least cost in any job.

But that's what the farmer—particularly the small operator—has got to do to meet postwar competition: he's got to produce the most food possible with the least effort and, consequently, at the lowest cost.

The farmer with 10 acres in truck crops needs one kind of tractor. The farmer with 100 acres in wheat alone needs another kind—or, as is usually the case, two or more different tractors. The tractor which does a good job on the Great Plains may be useless in the rice territory. And so it goes.

Conditions of climate, the lay of the land, and the character of soils in the different parts of this vast country, together with wide variations in the nature of crops and the size of operations, combine to produce wide differences in the requirements for tractors. Harvester's policy is to meet all these requirements.

That is why Harvester's postwar line includes a great variety of Farmalls and other specialized tractors and attachments rather than a single tractor with a single system of tools. Every tractor in the line was developed after scientific research and testing under actual operating conditions showed the specifications needed for efficiency and economy.

Every Harvester-built tractor is the right machine for its particular job.

WARNING

to All Car Owners

IF YOU CAN'T PAY FOR ACCIDENTS YOU MAY LOSE YOUR RIGHT TO DRIVE....

The minute you have an automobile accident in which any person is injured or killed or property damage exceeding $50 occurs, you will come face to face with loss of your driving rights, under the new Illinois Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Law which takes effect January 1, 1946. This law requires that any driver or owner of a car involved in an accident must show that he has Automobile Liability and Property Damage insurance to cover the damage claims that may result, or he must post security up to $11,000 to pay them.

INABILITY TO MEET THESE REQUIREMENTS WILL BE PENALIZED BY SUSPENSION OF THE DRIVING LICENSE AND CAR REGISTRATIONS HELD BY THE DEFAULTING PARTY.

Under these circumstances it is pretty obvious that unless you have plenty of money and property, and don't care if you lose it, the thing to do is to get Automobile insurance if you want to be sure of keeping your driving rights.

We can furnish such protection for you through the Hartford Accident and Indemnity Company. The Hartford is well known as one of the largest and most reliable Automobile insurance companies and a Hartford policy satisfies all requirements of the new law. Furthermore, Hartford Automobile Insurance rates are still attractively low, despite elimination of wartime restrictions on speed and mileage, and the return of peacetime driving.

Let us tell you about Hartford advantages and low cost, and give you further details about your obligations under the new Illinois Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Law. We'll be glad to supply this information without obligation.
